

Birungi Korutaro is a consultant that has extensive experience in market research and private sector development, particularly SMME development in South Africa. She has designed entrepreneur development programmes for the Tourism sector of South Africa as well business development programmes in the disadvantaged communities of the Western Cape. Ms. Birungi Korutaro also has eight years of corporate work experience having worked for Shell in various positions in East Africa.

She has a Bachelor of Statistics (Honors) Degree, an MBA from the University of Cape Town and has just completed her PhD at Stellenbosch Business School that focused on the investment climate of emerging market economies. The title of her thesis is “Measuring the barriers to investment in emerging market economies: A case of Africa”